

Involvement and Experience at the Health Innovation Network

Once upon a time people didn't know what the benefits were to involving people, or how to start doing this in their own work...

Everyday people were going about their work without considering how involving people could be helpful or were unsure how to actually do involvement...

One day we decided to start a community, a champions club, where like-minded people could come together to share ideas, good practice and advice...

Because of that, we have a supportive space to collectively develop our involvement work.

Until finally, the community involved everyone to support the creation of an involvement strategy and support involvement across the HIN.

The end...

Stay tuned for the sequel as the journey continues!
