Reducing Health Inequalities

Once upon a time, because of health inequalities, many healthcare workers felt …

Everyday, people remained curious as they ploughed on in their work…

One day curiosity turned into hope…why not start a community of practice? Ayo, Sophie, Gemma and Simone led the community…

Because of that, many more came together to lend their voices, share insights and learn together.
(We raised issues, built current picture of health inequalities, identified areas of priorities, used the premortem tool to explore further, brought experts in for a chat)

UNTIL FINALLY…
Uncertainty around reducing health inequalities in South London was addressed. Everyone in the community came to the rescue. They created a communal space to think and act.
They continue to this day, their gallant work at the Health Innovation Network ☺
